After 40 years in Alabama Politics

Senator Jimmy Holley says he will not seek re-election

by Ferrin Cox, Publisher

Alabama Senator Jimmy Holley said Monday morning, June 28, that he would not be seeking reelection after 40 years of public office.

Holley said he had thoroughly enjoyed serving in the Alabama legislature (first in the House of Representatives and then in the Senate). He said he had met and worked with some great people during those years and looking back the long-time lawmaker acknowledged some remarkable accomplishments for the district and the State of Alabama.

He is currently serving his sixth term

Holley added.

Holley represents Coffee and Covington counties as part of Alabama's Senate District 31. He and his wife, Mary, reside in Elba, Ala.

in the Alabama Senate, after serving five terms in the Alabama House of Representatives.

"Coffee County has really been good to me during all those years, and I greatly appreciate their continued support,"

Coffee County BOE votes to offer superintendent job to Kelly Cobb

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The Coffee County Board of Education met in a called meeting Tuesday evening, June 29, and voted to offer the job of superintendent to schools to longtime system employee Kelly Cobb.

Cobb currently serves the system as its Federal Programs/Curriculum/Accountability Coordinator.

Board chairman Brian McLeod thanked the board members for their work during the process.

"I thought we had four quality candidates," McLeod said.

He said the board learned a lot about each of the candidates, whether he/she was a member of the system prior to this process or not.

"We had some wonderful, wonderful interviews," board member Wendy Massey said. "It wasn't an easy decision at all. We had a couple that stood out, and it was a real hard decision. I know we all prayed about it a lot."

Massey then made a motion, "that the board employ Kelly Cobb to serve as the superintendent of education for Coffee County Schools subject to successful employment contract negotiations and approval of said contract by the board at the end of negotiations." The motion received a second from board member Galen McWaters, and all board members voted in favor.

Next, the board approved a motion made by board member Mike Bailey to have a committee of three board members sit down with Cobb for negotiations of her contract. The motion was seconded by board member Eric Payne. The three board members that will sit on the committee are McLeod, Eddins, and Bailey.

Elba City Council votes to offer incentives for new, permanent home construction over next 12 months

by Linda Hodge, Editor

During the Elba City Council meeting held Monday evening, June 28, City Clerk Sally Bane said the city had received its first of two payments from the American Rescue Plan [government stimulus package] providing emergency funding to state, local, territorial and Tribal governments.

Bane said the city would in total receive a little over $900,000 from the American Rescue Plan. She said the first installment arrived last week in the amount of $450,000. The next installment is expected a year from last week.

"I am going to a conference at the end of the week, and a whole day [at that conference] will be dedicated to how to spend this money," Bane said.

There are very strict guidelines on how to spend the funds, and Bane said that has many governmental entities concerned because if the funds are not spent properly the governmental entity must pay the monies back. She said at the conference, legal advisors would be there to help governmental officials better understand proper ways of spending these dollars.

"I truly believe we are in a great spot and will have no problem spending ours properly," Bane said.

The city clerk said she expected to have a better understanding of the restrictions after the conference and would report back to the council on that. However, she said she does know that the monies can be spent on infrastructure, and that should be no problem for the city if needed to apply the funds that way.

Mayor Tom Maddox said he had been approached by Johnathan Lockett, Elba council member for District One, thanked the city and his fellow council members for the support of the Juneteenth Celebration held Saturday, June 19, in Elba. He said there had been plans for several outdoor activities for most of that afternoon, but the rain prevented the outdoor activities. Now, he said the event organizers would like on Saturday, July 17, to host the outdoor activities. He said, "this basically would remind you of a community family reunion kind of thing." He also said some of the food trucks that were on site for the June 19th activities plan to be back on July 17th. Lockett invited all to attend.

an individual wanting to construct four new homes in Elba, but that person had asked for some incentive help from the city. Taking that request into consideration, the mayor proposed Monday night that the city consider waiving building permit fees and sewer tap fees for a 12-month timeframe on any new permanent residential construction within the city limits, excluding mobile homes.

After a lengthy discussion of the matter, the council voted to offer the waivers for a 12-month timeframe of building permit fees and sewer fees on new permanent residential construction

A former music student of Catherine Brunson Luening provided a brief concert last Saturday, June 26, at the Elba Public Library. Luening, a native of Elba, taught music at Spence School in Manhattan, New York for 55 years before retiring at the age of 96 in 2018. Last Saturday's reception at the library was held in honor of Luening and her generous gifts.

She left over $400,000 each to Elba library and cemetery

Elba honors legacy of Catherine Brunson Luening

Earlier this year, the City of Elba learned its Elba Public Library and Evergreen Cemetery had been named as recipients of monies from the estate of Catherine Brunson Luening.

Each entity would receive $400,000-plus from Luening's estate. Last Saturday, June 26, the city held a reception at the Elba Public Library to honor Luening's legacy and say "thank you" to her family for the generous gifts.

Catherine Brunson Luening was born in Samson, Ala., but raised in Elba, Ala. She was the oldest of four daughters to John Franklin Brunson Jr. and Leola Johnson Brunson.

Luening was first homeschooled by her mother during the days of the Great Depression. At an early age, she was introduced to music lessons when her parents traded their cow's milk for music instruction.

With her heart set on a music career, Luening followed her younger sister, Eugenia, to New York in 1944. She eventually enrolled at the Juilliard School for a summer and later at the Graduate School of Music at Columbia University, earning a Master's degree in music.

While at Columbia, Catherine met the man she would marry, renowned composer Otto Luening. The two were married in 1959.

In 1963, she began her career as a much teacher at the Spence School in Manhattan, where she founded the instrumental music department and taught piano.

Even after her husband's death in 1996, Luening continued to tirelessly promote her husband's music and attend concerts. She

Coffee County EMA director says Coffee County falling behind in getting residents vaccinated for COVID virus

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Coffee County EMA director James Brown said Monday morning, July 28, during the Coffee County Commission meeting that Alabama and Coffee County are lagging on getting the COVID-19 vaccine administered to citizens.

As of Monday morning, he said Alabama sat with only 39 percent of its eligible population having received the first dose of the COVID-19 vaccine. He said only 32 percent of the state's eligible population was fully vaccinated.

"Coffee County looks worse than that," Brown said.

Of those eligible for the vaccine, Brown said only 27.5 percent of the county's population had gotten at least the first shot of the COVID-19 vaccine. He said only 22.7 percent was fully vaccinated.

"That's less than one out of four people," Brown said. "Alabama sits at number 49 out of 50 states in getting people vaccinated. If this was football, we'd be really worried about it because we are losing to Florida, Georgia, and LSU right now."

Brown said Enterprise State Community College had teamed up with the Alabama Department of Public Health to offer vaccine clinics to citizens on four different dates in July. He said this would be a great opportunity to get more of the local population vaccinated [see story on Page 3].

"I just encourage everyone to go out and get their vaccination," Brown said.

In other news from the EMA office, Brown noted the office had changed carriers

With Ferrin Cox

Today, July 1st, marks our 50th anniversary as owners of The Elba Clipper, and it was also a Thursday. After seven or eight years of being an employee of the newspaper, it 'only' took a couple of signatures and years of long hours at work for the newspaper to become our responsibility. It also became the sole source of income for Heddy and me to house, feed and educate our three children. It has been a great run, full of ups and downs, mistakes, floods, tornados, hurricanes and other disasters, not the least being the recent death of wife Heddy. However, most of those pale against the jillions of memorable events that continue to build onto our enjoyable passion of newspapering in Elba, Alabama. We have been associated with some of the finest people in the world. The occasional jackass that life casts upon each of us was, and is, always considered a challenge . . . an opportunity to convert them into friends and supporters. The news media seems to be magnets for these flustered individuals but surprisingly in many cases our efforts were successful and lifelong friendships were formed! And as Freud said, "Perhaps, with luck, I will make it, more or less intact, for another few years and be granted the liberty to continue to love and work, the two most important things."

Lots of folks will be vacationing during the 4th of July time period. HGTV recently featured an interesting collection of "Best Small Towns to Visit" on their website, singling out one community in each state. Flipping through the pictures and reading the short promos of each of the 50, it dawned on us that this would be a great adventure plan for anyone who likes to travel . . . visit them ALL. Of course, visiting, and exploring all fifty sites would have to be over a period of years, but how old will you be in those few years if you don't venture out? We found dozens of intriguing things that visitors would really enjoy seeing and/or participating in the ongoing activities. Oh, the Alabama community selected was Fairhope, on Mobile Bay in Baldwin County. We can testify to those who have never visited Fairhope that this former 'small town' would be a great place to start someone's fifty state visits. As with most of the '50', park your car and enjoy all the nooks and corners of the beautiful communities.

Our publicized comments several weeks ago about getting COVID-19 shots clearly upset one person on social media, somewhere out there in cyberspace. After several exchanges of e-mails, we suggested that clearly neither of us would change the other so we should just agree to disagree and move on. That calmed things down a bit but didn't end the negative e-mail 'quotes' he, on a regular basis, continued sending from previously unheard of distractors that he considered experts . . . many who were self-proclaimed experts with wild ideas that had already been debunked by those we consider well informed in the medical field. It finally became necessary to block his e-mail address from our computer, something we have never before done to any person who disagreed with our writings. Right now, there is still a nagging guilt feeling about that action, but not enough guilt to unblock him.

Senator Jimmy Holley said Monday morning that he is hanging up his spurs . . . after 40 years in state government, the acknowledged master of legislative procedures is not running for another term. As our chat moved on to more unofficial comments, he added that wife Mary is on board with this decision. If the truth were really known we would suggest that Mary has long been concerned about his health and is thrilled at the ultimate decision to officially retire and probably strongly encouraged it. But, ever the loyal wife, if he had decided to continue in the Senate, she would have continued making the weekly drives with him to Montgomery as she has done for some time.

Oh, the names of 'wantabe' replacements for Senator Holley are already hitting our e-mail and message accounts. However we will let each of them decide if and when they are going to make their Senate seat dreams and plans public information.

Cuzin Lou Lou wore herself out last Saturday doing what started out as "a little pressure washing" but turned in to a day-long job!

After taking Sister out for their weekly Saturday morning breakfast, Lou Lou decided to do a little cleaning around the outside of the house. She had noticed the front porch area needed some pressure washing done, so, she got the equipment out and went to work.

Soon it looked much, much better. That led Lou Lou to venture on past the front porch, and before she realized it, she was in a full-on pressure wash of the entire house! How did that happen???

The biggest surprise of the day came, however, when Sister came out and joined in on the pressure washing fun. Lou Lou could not believe her eyes!

Sister was working... actual hard labor work! That may have been a first in history!

Of course, Sister deemed it was time for a break pretty quickly, but she actually returned another time or two throughout the afternoon to help by giving Lou Lou a little break.

Lou Lou did get in a bit of trouble with Sister during the process...you had to know that was going to happen.

Lou Lou was so amazed by that Sister was working on a Saturday [she normally would have been inside taking a nice, relaxing nap] that she made a photo or two of Sister using the pressure washer gun. Then, she took it a step further by posting said photo on the social media!

Yeah...next break time, Sister insisted the 'work post' be removed from social media. She did not like said photo, even though Lou Lou tried to explain it was like an unbelievable phenomenon that people needed to see to believe. That really did not go over well!

When Sister assured Lou Lou that payback would come when she least expected it "if that post was not taken down", well...let's just say, Lou Lou took Sister at her word and removed the post pretty quickly!

Lou Lou did make up for it all by suppertime when she prepared a nice meal thanking Sister for her help with the pressure washing work. However, Lou Lou does not think Sister will be offering to help with that kind of work anytime soon again...she said she found muscles she did not realize she had from it!

Oh yeah! Sister also thought it was 'yucky' when dirt splattered back on her during the process.

Until next time...God Bless and Keep Smiling! From the Yonder gang... Have a Happy Fourth of July as we celebrate our Independence!!

tion [excluding mobile homes] in the city limits, provided those interested in the waivers have their construction plans pre-approved by the city council.

During the discussion, the mayor said the person interested in building the four homes that led to this proposal was looking at constructing those homes at the end of Winston Street off Highland Drive.

During this 12-month period, the mayor said he felt any funds lost due to the waivers' incentive would be recouped over time via sales taxes off materials purchased in Elba for construction, then later ad valorem taxes and other utility charges. Also, he noted while the city would not stipulate that construction materials be purchased in Elba, it would be highly encouraged by the city for that to happen.

Later in the evening, during the Elba Water and Electric Board meeting, that board also voted to the same type proposal for waiving water tap fees for 12 months on new permanent residential construction in the city limits, excluding mobile homes.

In another update for council members, the city clerk said the ongoing sewer project was still slated as of Monday to be completed by the end of July; however, she said she had spoken with the project engineer and that did not seem possible.

"I have spoken to the engineer and neither of us believe that is possible," Bane said. "Realistically, they think October is possible, but to allow for that, the council would have to vote to extend the contract or put the pay-backs in place."

Bane said the contractor would have to request in writing to the council for an extension to be awarded. She said the project engineer was going to notify the contractor because as of Monday no request had been made to extend the project contract.

Elba City Council discusses work being done and other ideas for a "clean" Elba

The Elba City Council discussed ongoing ideas on keeping the city 'looking nice' during its Monday evening, June 28, meeting.

City clerk Sally Bane said the Ben Ringsdorff monument located in downtown Elba had been cleaned and was looking much better. She said a Terry Spicer crew had cleaned the monument and had cut the grass along with weed-eating the area.

Bane said Spicer, a local service provider, had been contracted to keep this monument area 'up to par' for the time being.

Council member Gappa Wise said he thought the city would be doing this type maintenance with its employees once things had been brought back into good working order.

Bane said that is the ultimate plan once the local work release facility releases its inmates again to take on jobs, but she said that has yet to happen. The state stopped work release inmates from working public jobs last year when the COVID-19 pandemic hit.

Mayor Tom Maddox said the work release is expected to release for work later in July as of Monday night's meeting, and he said the city would utilize the work release inmates for several maintenance jobs again at that point.

Bane said the city's fountain, located on the courthouse square, also would be receiving some sprucing up within the next week or so. She said this would be a pretty large undertaking so the crew planning to do the work is waiting until after Elba's July 3rd events to get started on that project.

Bane said the fountain would be drained, cleaned, painted, and a proper water system would be installed along with more lighting. She said the idea is to make the fountain something "we are proud thing [the contractor] has disturbed must be put back to original or better than original condition, and in my opinion, they could work from now until the end of July doing that and still not be completed," Bane said. "I would expect at the next council meeting for me to provide a letter from the contractor asking for the project to be extended."

Council member Jane Brunson said she had been approached by several citizens wondering if there was anything the council could do to improve the situation at one Elba business where lack of air conditioning had made it almost impossible to shop there recently.

"I have had several people comment to me about the Dollar General not being air conditioned, and they wondered if there is anything the city can do to help find a resolution to that problem," Brunson said.

The mayor and city clerk had a positive answer to Brunson's inquiry.

"We have had someone apply for a permit to repair the air conditioner for that building," the mayor said. "We got that Monday. So, apparently that issue will be taken care of now."

The mayor and council invited all citizens to make plans to attend the Let Freedom Ring event this Saturday, July 3, on the square in downtown Elba. The event will begin around 6:30 p.m. with entertainment and more, and the annual fireworks display will be at approximately 9 p.m.

City hall will be closed Monday, July 5, in observance of the 4th of July holiday, which falls on Sunday this year. The next city council meeting will be Monday, July 12, 5:30 p.m., at Elba City Hall.

Options for Pallbearer Gifts

Although serving as a pallbearer is considered an honor by many, it is also important for surviving family members - specifically those arranging the funeral - to show their appreciation for the services these individuals provide. In some services, family members may fill this role if necessary, but most will ask close friends or congregation members to serve as active or honorary pallbearers. It is likely those fulfilling this role may find the experience emotional, and it is important to respect this response.

Providing a gift is a great way to say "thank you" and allow pallbearers to commemorate their own experience in the service. Some ideas for pallbearer gifts include:

Framed Photographs of the Deceased. Individuals may select a uniform photograph placed in a nice silver frame to give to all pallbearers. If possible, some may choose to personalize each gift by providing each pallbearer with a unique framed photo that captures his or her relationship with the deceased.

Customized Tokens of Appreciation. Apart from photographs, these tokens of appreciation may include simple jewelry pieces, pressed flowers from the funeral or an inscribed memorial plaque. Some may even choose to gift something of the deceased that correlates to his or her relationship with the pallbearer, such as a book or music album.

Thank You Notes. Although it is customary for pallbearers to send thank you notes to the surviving members of the family, those planning the funeral can also consider writing a message to honor the service of these individuals. Thank you notes can be brief and only need to express gratitude for support and service during the funeral.

There is no standard for pallbearer gifts, but those who opt to provide them should make sure that the gesture is meaningful and honors the service - even if just a small token of gratitude.

PASTOR'S CORNER

Elba United Methodist Church

Malachi 3:1-5

3 Look, I am sending my messenger who will clear the path before me; suddenly the Lord whom you are seeking will come to his temple. The messenger of the covenant in whom you take delight is coming, says the Lord of heavenly forces.

2 Who can endure the day of his coming? Who can withstand his appearance? He is like the refiner's fire or the cleaner's soap.

3 He will sit as a refiner and a purifier of silver. He will purify the Levites and refine them like gold and silver. They will belong to the Lord, presenting a righteous offering.

4 The offering of Judah and Jerusalem will be pleasing to the Lord as in ancient days and in former years.

5 I will draw near to you for judgment. I will be quick to testify against the sorcerers, the adulterers, those swearing falsely, against those who cheat the day laborers out of their wages as well as oppress the widow and the orphan, and against those who brush aside the foreigner and do not revere me, says the Lord of heavenly forces.

As I sit and write the article for today, it is the feast day in the life of the church as it is the birth of John the Baptist. It is easy to remember because it is six months prior to the birth of Jesus.

John the Baptist is a peculiar prophet, one who dressed, ate, and spoke strangely. It is always baffling to me that people flocked to hear what he had to say and be plunged in the waters of the Jordan River for a baptism of repentance. Yet, the primary ministry of John lies in this selected text from the prophet Malachi that is to be read on the feast day of John the Baptist's birth.

It speaks of John as the messenger who clears a path before the God who is surely coming. In this scripture there are those who rejoice and make a pleasing offer to God, but there is also judgment upon a myriad of actions; it is interesting to see which actions garner divine judgement.

Nevertheless, the coming Day of the Lord is something we anticipate, for on that day heaven and earth with merge, the Kingdom of God will be fully present, and neither will there be death nor any tears shed. John pointed to the coming of God in Jesus Christ to announce the breaking of the Kingdom into this reality, and we get to pick up that mantle of the prophet and point to the Day of the Lord.

I wonder if I live my life in such a way that points to God like John the Baptist did. I wonder if I am clearing a path and making the way ready. I wonder if all who claim Christ as Lord and King lived as subjects of the Kingdom of God and citizens of heaven.

Happy Birthday John the Baptist, you have given us big shoes or sandals to fill!

Unfulfilled Desires

On May 25, 1961, President John F. Kennedy spoke to a joint session of Congress. He urged Congress to join with him in accomplishing an amazing and seemingly unreachable goal: "I believe that this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth."

Congress agreed, and work began in earnest. Tragically, Kennedy was assassinated less than six years before astronauts Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin landed on the moon on July 20, 1969. Neither President Kennedy nor King David lived to see their dreams fulfilled. However, their dreams inspired others who followed them. What dreams do you have that can challenge others to greatness in the cause of Christ and His Kingdom? - C.R.B.

Annual Maddox Family reunion held at Elba Elementary School

A multitude of descendants of the Francis General Bartow (FGB) Maddox Family gathered Saturday, June 26, at Elba Elementary School for the annual family reunion (as shown in the photo to the right).

Over 100 family members and friends attended this year's reunion in Elba. Several states were represented by those in attendance. Elba Mayor Tom Maddox and his family were among the attendees of the family reunion.

Music legend Paul Hornsby to hold book signing July 7th at Elba Public Library

Music legend and Coffee County native Paul Hornsby will be hosting a book signing at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, July 7th at the Elba Public Library. Hornsby was born on a farm near Elba and attended school in New Brockton. He got his first guitar as a young child, learned to play it and has never looked back.

He was inducted into the Alabama Music Hall of Fame in 2010.

His book is entitled 'Fix It In The Mix'. The title of the book comes from a term heard often in recording studios when some portion of a recorded song just sound just right.

Hornsby traces his musical career from that first instrument through his experiences performing with a number of other musicians, some good and some better than good. He doesn't dodge the hard times nor gloat over the good times, he just records his life's trail. He now owns and operates Muscadine Recording Studio in Macon, Georgia.

The Elba Public Library concluded its Tails and Tales Summer Learning program earlier this week, and the participants had quite a special visitor last Thursday, June 24, at the Elba Theatre. LEW-E'S Comedy Circus came to Elba to entertain the summer learning program participants. Lew-E (shown above and right) kept reportedly kept his crowd laughing throughout his visit!

Let Freedom Ring set for Saturday, July 3, in Elba

Elba's "Let Freedom Ring" event returns this 4th of July weekend with live entertainment, free watermelon, games, bounce houses, and of course, fireworks! Due to the 4th of July being on Sunday, Let Freedom Ring this year will be held Saturday evening, July 3, on the square in downtown Elba, Ala.

The festivities will get underway at 6:30 p.m. and conclude with the big fireworks show at approximately 9 p.m.

"We are excited this year to bring Nashville artist Cadie Calhoun to the stage in Elba as our entertainment for Let Freedom Ring," said Sandy [Bynum] Williams, president of the Elba Chamber of Commerce. "Cadie's music should provide something for everyone to enjoy."

Cadie's singing career began when she was just 10-years-old singing in the choir at Temple Baptist Church in Hattiesburg, Miss. She credits her musical talents to the strong faith and extensive support from her family.

Cadie has toured with John Stone known for "Mamma and Budweiser", "Shame on Me" and "We All Feel the Pain" and Craig Morgan known for "That's What I Love About Sundays", "Redneck Yacht Club" and "International Harvester". After teaming up with Grammy nominated producer engineer Aaron Rodgers, the Cadie Calhoun Band was later formed.

Cadie currently resides in Nashville, Tenn., where she is a member of the Brentwood Baptist Choir. The last few years of her career have been dedicated to writing and producing her latest album.

To learn more about Cadie Calhoun and her music, visit her website at www.cadiecalhoun.com or check out her page on Facebook @cadiecalhounmusic. Cadie and her full band are scheduled to perform July 3rd in Elba, according to her tour schedule.

The Elba concert will begin around 7 p.m. and continue until around 8:45 p.m. Immediately following Cadie's performance in Elba the annual fireworks display created by Elba native Mike Holderfield will light up the sky to the sounds of patriotic music.

Throughout the evening, as Cadie Calhoun performs and before the fireworks, there also will be plenty of other activities going on around the downtown square in Elba for all to enjoy, including fun activities for children. Also, the Elba Splash Pad, located at TigerTown Park, will be open throughout the evening as part of the Let Freedom Ring celebration in Elba.

Williams said the Elba Masonic Lodge #170 would have free watermelon for all to enjoy during the event, and she said the always popular watermelon eating contest would return this year too.

"After only having the fireworks last year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we are so happy to bring our full Let Freedom Ring event back again this year," Williams said. "It should be a great day and night to be in Elba, Alabama. So mark those calendars now."

Access to information is the public's most valuable tool when it comes to protecting your homes, your communities, and your government. Newspapers have the unique ability to reach a broad audience, regardless of the socioeconomic status, by providing public notices both in print and online.

The public notices appearing in your newspaper provide important information on issues such as rezoning for landfills, government contracts, and even traffic detours. It's your right to know how your tax dollars are spent and what could be coming to your neighborhood.

And when it comes to shining the light on government, public notices deliver.

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

For the first time I can remember our grandson Lawson doesn't seem to be excited about the upcoming school year. I know there are still six weeks before he has to worry about being a fifth-grader, but so far he just shrugs his shoulders and reminds me how much vacation time is left. I guess that means for me to change the subject.

For what it is worth....

 The new high school athletic seasons may be almost two months away, but that doesn't mean the players are taking it easy, as here in Elba all student-athletes in all sports are working out three days a week on conditioning. The summer workouts aren't mandatory and are held to get the players in condition. However, there are a lot of players working out each week, and you know the coaches are keeping count on just who and who isn't attending practice. You can bet when official workouts roll around in August the players that took some time off will get the chance to make up the workouts!

 Alabama head football coach Nick Saban is never far from the sports headlines and recently was back on page one when it was announced he had agreed to a contract extension that would keep him the head man at Tuscaloosa through the 2028 season. Saban's salary will remain at $8.425 million a year for the upcoming season, but will then increase by $800,000 each year from 2022-2025, keeping him as the sports highest paid coach. In his 14 years at Alabama, the Crimson Tide has posted a record of 165-23 and claimed six national titles, and his phenomenal success has made him the best investment the officials at the university have ever made. Even if Coach Saban doesn't remain as the Tide's head coach until he reaches age 77, the contract extension will quiet any and all talk of pending retirement from opposing coaches.

 As a sports writer and a high school football play-by-play radio announcer, the news last week that Charles Barkley would retire in two years after a couple of decades as a basketball color analyst certainly caught my attention. Barkley, never one to bite his tongue, said the new 'cancel culture' had taken away the fun from being an announcer, since everything he said would probably make someone upset. The former Auburn and NBA great is infamous for making off-color and politically incorrect comments just about every time he is on the air, and made it clear that in his opinion the new 'woke' culture won't let him have fun anymore. Not that any people hear me on any given Friday night, or read my column on a weekly basis. However, I will admit I may have to slow down and give a little more thought to what I write and say in the very near future.

 The eraser is still finding its way to the proposed changes in the College Football Playoffs that would expand the post-season party to 12 teams as officials in the Pac12 have insisted that all conference champs in the 'Power Five' conferences (SEC, ACC, Big Ten, Big 12 and Pac 12) receive automatic berths in the playoffs. The folks out west are afraid that the champion in their conference could get left out of the playoff picture, and if history does indeed repeat itself, that would probably be possible. The original cutoff line was set at the top 12 teams in the polls, with conference champs making the field earning a first round berth, but proposed changes will give the six highest ranked conference champs an automatic berth. The change already has conference officials discussing the possibility of doing away with conference championship games, as well as abandoning divisions within the conference, since a late-season upset could knock out a team that was ranked high during the regular season. Okay, so do you still think that expanding the playoffs is an easy choice?

 In closing.... The Alabama High School Athletic Association has been a powerful force in all matters involving high school sports for decades, and it will be interesting to see if all the changes in Montgomery will result in a loss of that power. The organization has long been run by strong willed former coaches that never backed down from a challenge, and with a new director, a new assistant director and a number of other changes it be interesting to see if some of our elected state officials try to get more involved. I just have a feeling a battle may be brewing.

GIFT

continued to lead the music program at Spence until declining health forced her to retire in 2018 at the age of 96.

When she died earlier this year, the reading of her will revealed that Luening had bestowed the monies of her retirement savings to the Elba Public Library and to Evergreen Cemetery in Elba. At that time, the monies would provide $400,000 to each.

"This is her legacy," nephew David Sparks said last Saturday during the reception held at the Elba Public Library. "She wanted to give back to her hometown, her community."

The retirement account was started by Luening during the time of World War II. With her retiring only two years prior to her death early this year, that account had grown quite large.

During Monday evening's Elba City Council meeting, councilmember Jane Brunson said the Luening's gift had grown a bit from the time she died until Elba received the monies. She said this equated to the library and cemetery receiving a little more than $420,000 each.

"It was basically her retirement account," councilmember Brunson said. "She died at age 98 and she retired from teaching at age 96. She had never really touched her retirement account. That is quite a remarkable feat."

Councilmember Brunson said last Saturday's reception was a lovely recognition of the gifts that Luening left for her hometown. While Luening did not have children of her own, several of her nephews, great-nephews and other extended family members were able to attend the reception, and councilmember Brunson said they all seemed to really appreciate the recognition.

The monies have been transferred into investment accounts for both the library and the cemetery. City officials said the plan for the library is to use some of the income each year to go towards programming needs, which should more than double the library's programming budget each year.

As for the cemetery, Mayor Tom Maddox said the cemetery board plans to announce some improvements for the cemetery in the near future that the Luening gift would help make possible.

Jack Brunson is shown speaking during the reception held last Saturday at the Elba Public Library recognizing the generous donations made to the library and city cemetery from the Catherine Brunson Luening Estate. Brunson said while Elba is very thankful for its very nice public library facility, that the $400,000-plus donation to the facility would be huge for the library.

A large crowd gathered last Saturday afternoon at the Elba Public Library for a reception honoring the late Catherine Brunson Luening and donations made from her estate to the Elba Public Library and the Evergreen Cemetery. Luening donated over $400,000 to each the library and the cemetery. The funds have been placed into investment accounts.

of again."

The mayor provided council members with a copy of the city's trash ordinance, and he asked them each to review that for further discussion in the near future.

"If we were to try and enforce everything on these documents, we couldn't do it," Maddox said. "We don't have the manpower nor do we have enough punishment for everyone who fails to do what they are supposed to do [according to the ordinance]."

The mayor suggested the council review and discuss this at length and then try and focus on some things they feel can be done to keep the trash within the city better controlled.

"The recycling center is a mess down there," Maddox said. "We may have to have a council meeting around that just to get it cleaned up."

The city clerk said she and the mayor had spoken with a branch of ADEM that deals with recycling, and they are awaiting some helpful direction from ADEM on what can be done to help with the recycling process and issues with keeping it clean.

Maddox also noted the city had placed a dumpster next to the recycling building for residents to bring trash they did not wish to have sitting out by the road for a long amount of time awaiting the trash truck pickup. He said every time he drives by it is either full or overflowing, so, residents are utilizing it.

Bane said the city had been in contact with a company that had agreed to bring a larger dumpster for this need once it had one available.

"People are using it," Maddox said. "We just need a bigger one."

Council member Wise said his biggest issue with the recycling operation currently is that it needs to be kept cleaned up around the facility better by the ones operating it.

The city leaders vowed to continue to search for ideas to keep Elba clean.
